Sea Coast Echo Jackson Hdqrs., Room 101, Lamar Life Ins. Bldg., Jackson, Miss., Sept. 14, 1927.

That prohibition is popular in this state is indicated by findings of the federal grand jury for the Southern division of the Southern district now in session at Biloxi. Yesterday's sitting of the jury resulted in 22 indictments, in addition to which the district attorney filed 77 criminal informations in cases where defendants had pleaded guilty, and paid in more than $1,200 in fines and costs.

After conference between Judge Edwin R. Holmes, Rushing & Guile, attorneys of Biloxi, and P. H. Eager, of Jackson, on the part of the State of Mississippi; and Judges Louis Burns and Rufus Foster on the part of the State of Louisiana, October 12th has been set for hearing of the suit for permanent injunction against the State of Louisiana to prevent officials of that state from interfering with Mississippi fishermen catching shrimp and taking oysters in that state and bringing them to this for canning.

Ground was broken Tuesday for Meridian's $4,000 war memorial to be located in the Legion Triangle at the intersection of Sixth Street and Twenty-third avenue.

According to a report from the State Treasurer this week, the treasury contained on Sept. 1 $736,169.72 in the general fund, as against $423,145.04 on Jan. 1, 1924. Total cash in special funds on Sept. 1 amounted to $2,116,109.36, with the treasury balance showing $2,944,513.03, as against $3,284,040.20 on August 1. On the disbursement side of the treasurer's report from which these figures are taken are: Pay warrants issued in August for current general fund expenses, $446,307.94; pay warrants issued for current special fund expense, $729,586.79; pay warrants issued for non cost disbursements—bond money, donations and federal funds, $126,165.07.

Governor-elect Theodore G. Bilbo is leaving the city tonight to join H. C. Ditzler and with him make a tour by auto of a number of states of the north that have good highway systems in order to study them and enlarge his own plans for improving highways in this state, before sailing from New York on the steamer Majestic for England, going from there to Denmark, the Mother of Co-operative Marketing, and to Holland, the two countries of the world that against the greatest handicaps have accomplished most for the prosperity of their agricultural population and along educational lines. Mr. Bura Hilbun, State Supervisor of Negro Education, will accompany Mr. Bilbo.

Herbert Hoover, United States Secretary of Commerce and dictator of relief and rescue work during the flood period was in the state this week for the first time since he was assigned to the job, and commented favorably on the work done by the relief organizations and planters of that section. Mr. Hoover said, among other things, "The problem now is to rebuild as much of this section as possible, to tide over the winter for the stricken people who need cars, to see that they have forage crops, and to prepare for next year's planting." He stated that the co-operation given the relief directors has been splendid. Relief work will continue through November and as long thereafter as is necessary to complete the task properly according to Secretary Hoover.

In connection with findings of the Federal Grand Jury at Biloxi in liquor cases, interest attaches especially to the information received in the office of M. H. Daily, of this city, federal prohibition enforcement director for this district, that five new Coast Guard cutters, each 100 feet long of the fastest type, and capable of overhauling the swiftest run runners afloat, have reported to the base at Pascagoula. Each of these cutters has a range of about 3,000 miles, and carries a crew of 12 men with heavy equipment of guns.

Extremes of opinion met last week within a narrow radius in Copiah county when, on the one hand, Crystal Springs sold a bond issue of $150,000 for further consolidation of schools in that territory while a little farther south the one-teacher, 20-pupil school of Gallatin declined at the polls in a special election to consolidate with the Smyrna school district. According to press reports, the question was decided on sentiment against abandoning their own school site, and on opposition to assuming a pro rata share of the Smyrna school district's bonded indebtedness, as required by law.

Jeff Davis, one of the small counties of the state, joined the fight against the cattle tick when the board of supervisors voted today to co-operate with the state livestock sanitary board in dipping cattle. The state-wide stock law, which goes into effect Oct. 1, requires the enclosing of pastures and makes the task of gathering and dipping cattle more practicable than when they were on the open range while the development of state-wide sentiment for better cattle and the building up of the dairy industry makes it necessary to get rid of ticks.

TAYLOR SCHOOL NOTES.

The opening exercises of the R. W. Taylor School were well attended by parents and friends of the school. A program of songs and talks on school were given. Mrs. Solomon, Mrs. W. L. Bourgeois, Mrs. Brownell and Mrs. Traub spoke some very encouraging words to the teachers and pupils.

The P. T. A. was very well represented and several new members were added to our list.

Mr. Chas. Traub, Sr., spoke on civic pride. He made a splendid impression as an interesting speaker and I am sure the pupils will put into practice many of his suggestions along this line.

Mr. C. G. Moore spoke on personal pride and ambition. His interesting and instructive appeal for higher aims and purposes in life was well received by one and all and we are going to make an effort to live up to these ideals during the coming session.

Mrs. Stockstill outlined some of the work to be done during the coming session—both for the pupils and for the P. T. A.

Mrs. Browell sang "The Rosary," playing her own accompaniment, and Mrs. Solomon played two instrumental solos. This concluded an hour of very interesting worth-while work for us.

Buying in Bay St. Louis Helps All to Succeed

Some several centuries ago when Caesar made his little excursion into France, he discovered that the country was divided into three parts. He wrote a history of his little adventure and he opened the narrative with this fact.

It wouldn't take a Caesar to discover the dividing line in Bay St. Louis. The main difference between the divisions in France, for that was the section visited by the old Roman emperor, and Bay St. Louis is that there are only two divisions which are very noticeable. These two are the folks who do their buying at the local places of business and the folk who carry a mail order catalog around with them as a sort of handy reference volume.

They make up their shopping list and then run through this pretty colored book and take down the numbers of the articles they want. Then they fill out the order blanks so handy in the back of the book, enclose a check as part payment, and off the order goes to some city several hundred miles away where is located the mail order concern.

Within a few days the goods are received. They may be just what you wanted and then again they may not be. Of course there is an exchange privilege, but this necessitates another delay of several days, and perhaps the articles are wanted in a hurry. All of the money goes out of Bay St. Louis and never gets back here again. The only portion of the cash involved which really stays in town is the postage price of the two-cent postage stamp.

On the other hand the folks who do their buying at home have an opportunity to see just exactly what they are getting, and if one store fails to have the desired article there are others which can be visited. The merchant too is right here at home and if the articles go to the bad the customer can call him over the phone and tell him so, and the matter can be adjusted.

The best part about the whole thing, however, is that the money involved in the transaction stays right here in Bay St. Louis.

The dry goods merchant spends his cash with the grocery merchant, and the groceryman in turn spends his with some other business concern and eventually, a part of it gets back to the original purchaser who put the money in circulation. A part of it goes to pay the city taxes necessary to keep the streets in shape, to pay the various officials, to erect the various public buildings, and to keep the city and county government functioning. It has its part in keeping down lawlessness, and making the city a safe place in which to live.

The other crowd, who patronize the mail order concerns have no part in this home building program. They may save a few cents on the individual purchases they make themselves, but they are impoverishing their home town and gradually sapping its life away and inviting lawlessness and striking at the very foundations of the home life of the community.

If you belong to the class who has been buying great store by your mail order catalog and believing everything you see printed in it, perhaps you have never looked at this side of the picture. It's worth thinking about, and if you are honest with yourself and have any patriotism so far as your home town is concerned, you will see the folly of the practice you have been indulging in.

Help build a bigger and better Bay St. Louis by patronizing the home concerns.

CITY ECHOES.

A card mailed at sea from A. Palmer Lott, en route to Paris for the American Legion convention, has reached The Echo.

We regret to hear of the continued illness of Mayor Blaize, who has been confined to his bed since last week, a victim of fever. However, we are glad to learn he is doing better and will in time be himself again.

Miss Jeanette Straughan, efficient secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, has returned from her vacation, most of which time she spent visiting friends and relatives in New Orleans.

The Sunday 75-cent dinner at Swayze's Pavilion, on the beach front, where the cool Gulf Breeze blows, is worthy of consideration. Display advertisement to this effect appears on this page.

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard A. Lange, who returned from Asheville, North Carolina, and who were visiting at the home of Capt. and Mrs. G. E. Mader, left Thursday for their home in Lafayette, Louisiana.

Mr. Lucien Gex will finish his studies in law at L. S. U., at Baton Rouge, recently returning by auto from a trip to that city. He plans to practice at New Orleans in our sister state.

Rev. Dr. John L. Sullivan, a well-known figure in prison reform and boys' work, while on the Gulf Coast was the guest of G. E. Temple at Rotary club meeting Wednesday evening, and was one of the principal speakers of the evening.

Miss Evelyn Boh, attractive young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Boh, will leave the first part of next week for New Orleans, where she will attend school, and plans to return for occasional week-end visits.

Mrs. C. B. Fisher and accomplished young daughter, Miss Elizabeth, have been spending the week in New Orleans, visiting friends in their former home city. They visit frequently and their visits to friends in the Crescent City are always a source of mutual pleasure.

Returning from their extensive and interesting trip to Canada, as far as Quebec, accompanied by their mother, Mrs. V. Camors, and aunt, Miss Loehrer, Master Robert Camors has resumed his studies at St. Stanislaus and Miss Alice Camors at St. Joseph Academy.

Opening of St. Joseph's Academy for 1927-28 session was marked with interest and general enthusiasm, under the new administration of Mother Claire. The boarding scholars' number is augmented over that of last year, totaling 210. Many improvements accomplished during vacation period.

Ladies of the Altar Society of the Catholic Church will hold a "Rummage Sale" at the Colson building, Railroad avenue, near "Devil's Elbow." Ladies in charge plan to have an unusually complete and varied stock to offer, and patrons will find it to their advantage to make early purchases.

The fact several major sales in realty have taken place the past two weeks is significant—not only that values are steady but in the majority of cases enhancing. Bay St. Louis and Waveland beach property are well holding their own and the revival of values and sales stabilizes investors and others who wish to buy.

Mr. and Mrs. Leo W. Kony, whose summer home at Cedar Point has been a central point for so many charming and interesting informal gatherings during the season, left last night (Thursday) for New Orleans for New York, where they will remain for some time.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Osoinach and their son, John, left Sunday for their home in Memphis, Tenn., after spending a few days visiting under the parental roof of Mr. and Mrs. John Osoinach, prior to their going away on a visit of indefinite duration to the Pacific Coast. While here they visited at Biloxi, where they resided before moving to the Tennessee city.

Mr. and Mrs. Glen Alveston, the regret of their many local friends, have moved back to Logtown, after a residence of a year or more on the South Beach Front, their home sold during the early part of the week. Mr. Westcott has not moved so very far after all, meaning he will visit Bay St. Louis frequently, unfailingly and at least once a week—Rotary night on Wednesdays.

Mr. and Mrs. Adam Lorel and daughter, Miss Irvine, recently returned from Balsam, N. C., are spending the delightful fall season at their Bay St. Louis home on the North shore drive, before returning to New Orleans for the winter. Their trip to the Carolina mountains and stay at Balsam (near Asheville) proved both delightful and profitable in the sense of rest and recreation.

Misses Olga and Merle Debuc, accomplished and attractive young daughters of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Debuc, will leave Tuesday for Bristol, where they will resume their studies at Interment College, one of Virginia's foremost institutions of learning.

Charles Banderet, of Banderet's Filling Station, corner Main and Front streets, selling Liberty Peps, has a card of thanks to this issue of The Echo, voicing his thanks and appreciation to the public that came so promptly and nobly to his rescue on the occasion of the fire September 3rd. This card was inadvertently omitted from these columns last week, but through the fault of Mr. Banderet.

The omission was ours.

A subscriber to The Echo, writing from his home in Illinois, dated of September 9th, says: "Enclosed you will find my check for $2 for my Echo subscription. I enjoy your paper very much and I am glad to see Bay St. Louis pushing forward." It is gratifying to note outsiders are interested in Bay St. Louis to the extent of watching the city grow.

Pushing forward is a good motto, and we plan to keep up the good work.

Mr. and Mrs. Emile A. Thomas and daughter, Hilda, who have been spending the summer at their beautiful and attractive home in East Carroll avenue, will return to New Orleans Sunday. Miss Hilda resuming her academic studies. However, they will visit for week-ends throughout the fall and winter.

IN SOCIAL CIRCLES

Mr. and Mrs. John D. Grace and their accomplished daughter, Miss Virginia, were hosts Monday evening to quite a number of Waveland friends, which number included from Bay St. Louis Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Glover, Mrs. E. J. Lacoste, Mrs. C. J. Aubert, Miss Evelyn Lacoste, Mr. and Mrs. Moreau.

Particularly given entertainment was in store for the guests, whose good fortune it was to be present, with variety as the keynote for the evening. It has been repeatedly said that Mr. and Mrs. Grace and their daughter are adepts in the fine art of entertaining. This is not only accepted in social circles, but well nigh locally proverbial. Someone has adroitly said, an evening with the Graces is always one with never a dull moment and no "dry" time.

Having studied the art of legendary and kindred tricks and optical illusions, Miss Grace is quite an entertainer. An improvised stage facing a number of rows of seats was a fitting setting, and guests enjoyed and were mystified from time to time with the various and divers numbers. The tricks were quite clever and some more baffling than the others, many-phased, numerous in number and affording a subject of interest and discussion.

Retiring to the spacious music room, Mrs. Glover and Miss Lacoste rendered a number of vocal solos each, and Miss Grace with cello. Mrs. Grace, who rendered interesting mental solo of rare charm. Miss Grace, a pupil of Ferrata, closed the program with the rendition of a difficult classic on the piano.

An engaging amusement, affording plenty of scope for the sport-like propensities and women alike furnished an hour of thrills. The game of "playing the ponies," ever old and yet ever new, enticed and satisfied. Tickets for bets were distributed and winning ponies brought reward to the lucky holders.

This was followed by the final section of the program—insatiable bridge, fascinating, all-absorbing. The average card players dotes on bridge. Many prizes were awarded, each unique and evidenced thought and selection.

Among the guests from Waveland were Mr. and Mrs. Edw. Carriere, Prof. and Mrs. A. Robert, Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Lejeune, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Kersey, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Flashpole, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Francis, Mrs. Smallpaige, Misses Lejeune, Palanque, Messrs. Frank and Charles Stewart, Harold Grace.

MRS. MOORE ENTERTAINS. Mrs. Wm. Moore, of Houston, Tex., residing in Bay St. Louis for the present, was hostess Tuesday afternoon at the "Cozy Corner" to a most delightful evening at bridge, the affair one of the many but outstanding for its charm and delight afforded the guests.

Mrs. Moore's guests were entertained at bridge, and included Mrs. Clem Weston, Mrs. J. O. Smith, Mrs. Alexis Smith, Mrs. H. L. Kersey, Mrs. Roger M. Boh, Mrs. J. B. Craig, Mrs. H. U. Canby, Mrs. E. W. Drackett, Mrs. Robert Mitchell, Mrs. J. C. Backley, Mrs. C. G. Moreau, Misses Ethel de Armas, Mary Perkins.

Mrs. Moore has formed quite a circle of friends while here and received many number of social attentions.

To Whom It May Concern.

The many friends of Mr. Funston Mauffray regret to learn of the trouble experienced by him through a technical violation of the Postal regulations pertaining to his position in the Pass Christian Postoffice. Due to an unthoughtful violation of these regulations, the Postal authorities reported him to the Federal Grand Jury as having been technically "suspended" in his accounts to the extent of $140, which afterwards developed to be only $60. When Mr. Mauffray's attention was directed to the error, it was immediately corrected by him; and the indictment by the Grand Jury, accordingly, followed as a distinct surprise.

Mr. Mauffray declined to plead guilty to the charge against him on account of the moral aspect of the question; but he elected not to oppose the charge insofar as the violations of the regulations were concerned. The outcome of the matter was that a fine of $60 was imposed upon him.

MRS. F. A. MAUFFRAY.

Card of Thanks.

Realizing how dangerously exposed we were to the raging fire of Saturday week, and appreciating deeply the timely and valued assistance rendered, which saved building and enabled me to continue business at the same stand uninteruptedly, I wish to gratefully acknowledge the assistance rendered and to thank one and all. It is a great satisfaction, indeed, to live in a community where another's interest was served and saved in such tense time.

Thankfully and appreciatively,
 CHARLES BANDERET,
